Fredericton – The New Brunswick Dental Society is hoping that New Brunswick children know a little about how to keep their teeth clean and clear of decay. The new context, “Brush Floss for Life” is aimed at children age 3-16 and involves an on-line quiz.

“We want to celebrate young New Brunswickers with good oral health”, says NBDS President, Dr. Kelly Manning. “The goal is to encourage twice-yearly dental visits and regular brushing and flossing for New Brunswick children”.

Parents and guardians are invited to assist their children on-online to answer five questions and enter to win prize gift cards from The Source. The contest will run until June when three winners will be selected. Ballots are available through NB Dental Offices and more information is available at www.nbdental.com/healthyteeth.

April is Oral Health Month and the New Brunswick Dental Society is participating with a public education campaign highlighting the message “Building Better Teeth.”

The New Brunswick Dental Society exists to promote professional growth, high ethical standards and quality care giving through communication, education and the regulation of dentistry in New Brunswick.
